

NNU Garden Project

An update...

Over the past few months an enthusiastic group of NNU doctors and nurses have been busy beavering away in the garden, clearing, cleaning and planting. Hopefully this won't have gone unnoticed and you will have been making the most of the sun in our new improved garden! We have recently been awarded some money to continue this improvement (more below) and so thought we would update you all on our current hard work and future plans.

New plants

Many of you have donated plants - herbs, flowers and we are very grateful!

Our new tree

This is our new olive tree Gloria who seems to be enjoying the terrace, olives anybody?

Get involved!

Please feel free to join in, contact sorana.galu@nhs.net for more info.

Future plans...

Thanks to Abundance London we have some funding for improvements...

Thanks to Kate and her contacts we now have some funding from the lovely people at Abundance London (www.abundancelondon.com) and so will be making some more improvements to the terrace. If you have anything you would like to see in particular please contact one of the garden team to let us know what you want to see. We are really keen for everyone to take part in the terrace and for it to become a team project.

Our hopes are that everyone will enjoy this new space to have lunch, a coffee before work or just somewhere to come and take 5 minutes when life on the unit becomes a little hectic. We know lots of you are already making the most of it which has made all of the hard work worthwhile! We are happy to hear that other teams within the Trust were inspired by us and would like to improve their gardens!

Many thanks to the garden team - Sorana, Ioana, Cat, Thais, Helen, Kate and Emilie, it wouldn't have happened without all of your hard work!
